

Nikki R. Wooten, PhD, LISW-CP, Associate Professor at the University of South Carolina. Lieutenant Colonel, Logistics, U. S. Army Reserves. Currently, Dr. Wooten is a tenured faculty member in the College of Social Work, teaches military social work and psychopathology graduate courses, and conducts behavioral health services research on military and veteran populations. She also has a research appointment at the William Jennings Bryan Dorn Veterans Administration Medical Center (Dorn VAMC). As Coordinator of the Graduate Certificate in Social and Behavioral Health with Military Members, Veterans, and Military Families, she has oversight of graduate-level curricular that prepares social workers, behavioral and public health, and allied health professionals to identify and assess the unique military and deployment stressors, mental health, and substance use problems of military and veteran populations. Dr. Wooten will serve as Vice Chairperson of the University of South Carolina Graduate Council for academic year 2020-2021.

Dr. Wooten received her PhD from the University of Maryland, Baltimore in 2009 and is principal investigator of Behavioral Health Care in Army Warrior Transition Units [aka the Army Warrior Care Project (AWCP) and funded by the National Institute on Drug Abuse #K01DA037412; 1 April 2014-31 March 2020], which analyzed the U. S. Department of Defense's Military Health System Data Repository to longitudinally examine behavioral health diagnoses and service utilization in U. S. Army service members ($N=883,091$) who returned from Operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom deployments between FY2008-2015. Specifically, AWCP studies determined the prevalence of deployed Army service members assigned to Warrior Transition Units (WTUs) after OEF/OIF deployments, deployment-related behavioral health problems in Army WTU members, trends in opioid prescribing, factors predicting opioid use disorder (OUD) and receipt of OUD treatment, and physical and behavioral health associated with length of WTU assignments and military discharge after WTU assignment. Dr. Wooten has over 45 publications on military, veterans, and vulnerable populations, developed four military social work courses, and conducted over 85 invited and peer-reviewed presentations, nationally and internationally. She serves as a Director-at-Large and Chair of the Committee on Publications on the Board of Directors, Society for Social Work and Research (2020-2023). The Committee on Publications has oversight and advisory roles for the Journal of the Society for Social Work and Research. In November 2019, she was invited to the White House to provide input for the National Association of Social Workers' response to the President's Roadmap to Empower Veterans and End a National Tragedy of Suicide \(PREVENTS\), which was established by executive order of President Trump. In 2018, she served on a Council on Social Work Education National Taskforce Steering Committee that authored and published a Specialized Practice Curricular Guide for Military Social Work. For the past 6 years, Dr. Wooten served on the Board of Directors of the Dorn Research Institute at the Dorn VAMC. Previous roles held by Dr. Wooten include Research Fellow, U. S. Army Research Institute for the Behavioral and Social Sciences, Department of Veterans' Affairs Predoctoral Fellow sponsored by the Baltimore VAMC, child therapist at Navy Family Advocacy Anacostia-Annex, and social work consultant at the Armed Forces Center for Child Protection located at the Walter Reed National Military Medical Center, which included testifying as an expert witness in courts-martials and civilian trials and providing professional training for military and civilian audiences on military family violence nationally and internationally. Dr. Wooten has co-authored publications and/or professional presentations with over 45 students, including undergraduate, masters, and doctoral students; directed two Honors College theses; and served as a Ronald E. McNair Scholar research mentor for six years. She was recently selected as an Ann Johnson Magellan Faculty Fellow by the Ann Johnson Institute for Science, Technology, & Society for mentoring students outside of her discipline on science, technology, and society research projects. Dr. Wooten also serves as an Associate Editor for Military Behavioral Health, Academic Editor for PLOS ONE, Editorial Board of Journal of Addictive Diseases, and previously on the Editorial Board of Research on Social Work Practice. Dr. Wooten has served as a grant reviewer for the National Institutes of Health, U. S. Army Medical Research and Materiel Command Medical Research Programs, and the Israel Science Foundation.

Dr. Wooten has over 31 years of military service and is a lieutenant colonel in the U. S. Army Reserves. Currently, she serves as a Small Group Instructor for the Staff Officer's Course at the U. S. Army's Command and General Staff College. She previously served in the District of Columbia National Guard (1994-2014) as Crisis Action Team Operations Officer (Domestic Operations Center and Army Operations Center, Pentagon), Company Commander, Secretary General Staff, Aide-de-Camp, and logistics officers and in the U. S. Army Reserves as an enlisted soldier (1989-1993). As Secretary General Staff, she collaborated with Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton's staff to draft the Major General David F. Wherley, Jr. District of Columbia National Guard \(DCNG\) Retention and College Assess Act. Dr. Wooten attended basic training at Fort Jackson, SC in 1989.

RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

2014-Present. Principal Investigator. Behavioral Health Care in Army Warrior Transition Units.
 NIDA 1K01DA037412. 1 April 2014-31 March 2020.

Behavioral Health Care in Army Warrior Transition Units [aka The Army Warrior Care Project (AWCP)] examines military service and deployment-related factors associated with behavioral health (substance use and mental health) problems and behavioral health service utilization, and examine health disparities among racial/ethnic minorities and women in military. The AWCP uses a unique, recently created Department of Defense/TRICARE Management Activity (DoD/TMA) longitudinal database, the Ill, Injured, and Wounded (IIW) cohort file linked to DoD Military Health System (DoD MHS), administrative [DEERS (sociodemographic)], deployment files (CTS), post-deployment health assessment (PDHA), post-deployment health reassessment (PDHRA), and Veterans Health Administration (VHA) referral data elements. This is the first study to characterize deployed Army service members assigned to Warrior Transition Units (WTUs), a high-risk, understudied group including the most severely injured Army service members assigned to the Army Wounded Warrior (AW2) Program.

2014–2015. Co-Investigator. Regional Approaches to the Star Behavioral Health Program. PI: Shelley MacDermid Wadsworth, Purdue University. Wounded Warrior Project. PI, University of South Carolina subaward. October 2014-December 2015.

In collaboration with the Military Family Research Institute at Purdue University, the University of South Carolina College of Social Work, South Carolina National Guard, and the South Carolina Department of Mental Health, implemented the Star Behavioral Health Providers' Training Program in South Carolina (SC STAR). SC STAR provided free, CEU-approved behavioral health training to civilian behavioral health providers (social workers, mental health and substance abuse counselors) in South Carolina to provide services to military personnel, veterans, and their families. In 2015, eight Tier One trainings will be provided throughout the state of South Carolina [Columbia (2 trainings), Charleston (2 trainings), Spartanburg, Rock Hill, Aiken/North Augusta, Beaufort]. The goal is to develop a provider registry and increase the behavioral health workforce capacity for military and veteran populations in South Carolina.

2013-2017. Co-Investigator. Preventing Prescription Drug Problems: A Pilot Military Opioid Safety Initiative [South Carolina Opioid Safety Initiative-Military (SCOSI-M)]. PI: Mary Jo Larson, PhD, Brandeis University. Subaward PI, University of South Carolina. NIDA 1R34DA0370391. September 2013-August 2016.

This feasibility study will design and test an innovative educational intervention using an academic detailing approach that has military/veteran-specific content and is targeted at physicians who treat military personnel and veterans. The study will promote the use of the South Carolina Prescription Drug Monitoring Program with the goal of increasing the use of safe prescribing practices and prescription drug monitoring practices among primary care physicians at the Dorn VA and Moncrief Army Community Hospital at Fort Jackson, SC.

2012-2014. Co-Investigator. In the Community Mental Health Training for Social Workers Program (ICMH). PI: Lena Lundgren, PhD, Boston University. PI, University of South Carolina subaward. HRSA 1M01HP251960100

The Boston University School of Social Work (BUSSW) Off-Campus Programs (OCP), in collaboration with 6 Massachusetts community-based mental and behavioral health treatment centers located in medically underserved communities (MUC), will increase the number of social work graduates trained in empirically supported trauma and co-morbid mental health (MH) and substance use disorders (SUD) identification and treatment methods, who will work as mental and behavioral health professionals in MUCs. The ICMH's formative evaluation has four goals: (1) To provide data to help ICMH Directors with continuous monitoring of objectives and outcomes; (2) To ensure monitoring of student field placements and of expanded field supervision; (3) To monitor students' pre- and post- knowledge test protocol for the six seminars per field placement year and the planned advanced clinical practice classes in trauma each year; and (4) To monitor the increase in the number of non-traditional older adult students recruited from the three medically underserved communities.

2010-2015. Co-Investigator. First Longitudinal Study of Missed Treatment Opportunities Using DOD and VA Data. PI: Mary Jo Larson, PhD, Brandeis University. PI, University of South Carolina subaward. NIDA R01DA030150. July 2010-June 2015.

This study investigates the relationship of early problem identification and linkage to behavioral health care with later development of substance abuse and psychological injury outcomes and attrition from the Army. This observational study is based on a quasi-experimental design with longitudinal data files and statistical models of deployment-related factors and military health services on the odds of long-term poor substance abuse outcomes, poor psychological outcomes (e.g., posttraumatic stress disorder, depression), thoughts of harmful behavior, and attrition from the Army, associated with service in Operation Enduring Freedom (OEF) and/or Operation Iraqi Freedom (OIF). The military cohort for this study will include military service members returning from deployment FY2008 to FY2011.

2011-2013. Co-Investigator. Early Identification of Substance Use and Psychological Problems in Army Women Veterans. NIDA Diversity Supplement to First Longitudinal Study of Missed Treatment Opportunities Using DOD and VA Data, R01DA030150. PI: Mary Jo Larson, Brandeis University. PI, University of South Carolina subaward. NIDA R01DA030150-S1.

This diversity supplement examines the prevalence of substance use, poly-substance use, psychological (i.e., posttraumatic stress disorder, depression) and behavioral (i.e., suicidality, attrition) problems, and substance use/psychological comorbidities in Army active duty, National Guard, and Reserve women upon return from military deployment and up to 24 months post-deployment. It will also describe the frequency of early identification of substance use, psychological, and behavioral problems as well as the frequency that Army women initiate and engage in behavioral health treatment within 3 months and up to 24 months after deployment. It will also identify individual and military characteristics and military experiences (e.g., combat exposures, military sexual trauma) associated with psychological and behavioral problems (i.e., substance use, PTSD, depression) and type and length of health services utilized by Army women using military treatment facility, military health surveillance, medical, attrition, and personnel data up to 24 months post-deployment.

2011-2013. Principal Investigator, Military Social Work Competency in Social Work Professionals.

This study ($n = 320$) assesses military social work competence among behavioral health professionals in the Greater Boston Area who previously attended a Boston University School of Social Work Professional Education Program workshop. Utilizing the CSWE military social work competencies (2010), this study aims to (1) assess military social work practice knowledge, skills, and abilities of social work and behavioral health professionals in the Greater Boston Area; (2) identify the areas of interest in professional military social work education among social work professionals in the Greater Boston Area; (3) describe the individual (i.e., sociodemographics) and professional (i.e., practice areas, work environment) characteristics of social work professionals who are interested in military social work practice; and (4) determine individual and professional social work characteristics associated with military social work competencies. Human subjects approvals from Boston University.

2011-2013. Principal Investigator, A Mixed Methods Study of Military and Deployment Experiences of Army Women.

A follow up to Deployment Risk and Resilience among Global War on Terrorism Army National Guard Women Veterans: Biopsychosocial and Mental Health Outcomes, this mixed methods study (QUAN-QUAL) examines the military and deployment experiences of Army women (Active, National Guard, Reserves) who were a member of the Army on 11 September 2001 utilizing an anonymous online survey with open-ended questions and confidential qualitative interviews. The quantitative phase utilizes a cross-sectional design to examine a) the association between military and deployment experiences and post-deployment mental health and b) the sociodemographic differences among Army women regarding post-deployment mental health, resilience, psychological stigma, perceive social support, and help-seeking in the military. The qualitative phase utilizes phenomenological methods to explore a) positive and negative experiences of Army women during military service and deployments, b) help-seeking behaviors, perceived social support, and coping strategies utilized by Army women during military service and deployments, and c) post-deployment reintegration and help-seeking experiences of Army women.

2009-2012. Principal Investigator; Deployment Risk and Resilience among Global War on Terrorism Army National Guard Women Veterans: Biopsychosocial and Mental Health Outcomes. Funded: Department of Veterans Affairs Predoctoral Fellowship, sponsored by the Baltimore VAMC.

This study examined the associations between pre-deployment, deployment, and post-deployment stressors, post-deployment social support, resilience, and post-deployment mental health (i.e., PTSD, depression, alcohol misuse) in Army National Guard (ARNG) women who were members of the District of Columbia, Maryland, or Virginia National Guard during their Operations Enduring Freedom and Operations Iraqi Freedom deployments. Of the participants, 104 women gave permission to be contacted for a follow-up interview.

2006-2009 Research Fellow, Consortium Research Fellows Program, U. S. Army Research Institute for the Behavioral and Social Sciences, Personnel Selection and Assignment Research Unit, Arlington, Virginia.

Conducted comprehensive and historical literature reviews on research topics of interest regarding Army personnel and selection. Conducted literature search and review and compiled archived publications on officer selection and enlisted classification for book chapters in Army selection and classification: A research history. Edited book chapters submitted for inclusion in Army selection and classification: A research history. Research report under review entitled “Job Analysis Techniques: An Annotated Bibliography”. Conducted literature search for book chapter on personality measures used for Army officer selection.

2006-2008. Research Assistant; Recognizing and Responding to Suicide Risk (RRSR): Essential Skills for Clinicians. PI: Jodi Jacobson, PhD, University of Maryland, School of Social Work Baltimore, Maryland. Funded: American Society on Suicidology.

“Recognizing and Responding to Suicide Risk: Essential Skills for Clinicians” was a suicide prevention training for mental health professionals. The study involved program evaluation of this training. Applicant’s primary duties consisted of assistance in planning and development of program evaluation, review and selection of standardized measures, and survey development using Survey Monkey®. Development of data analysis plan and SPSS database, and performance of data analyses using SPSS. Applicant conducted power analysis using Power and Precision software to determine a priori sample size, as well as data entry, management, and screening in SPSS; scored measures and created SPSS syntax to create variables and to compute total scores of measures.

2007-2008. Research Assistant; Newborn Screening for Heritable Disorders. PI: Carol Greene, MD, Pediatrics-Genetics, University of Maryland, School of Medicine; Co-PI: Julianna Oktay, PhD, Professor, University of Maryland, School of Social Work. Funded: Health Resources and Services Administration.

This study involved a collaboration between University of Maryland Schools of Medicine and Social Work in a mixed methods study to assess the effects of false positive newborn genetic screening on parents. Applicant assisted with IRB protocol, development of semi-structured interview protocol, and development of research methods and procedures.
